WAS VERNER DULY CHOSEN?

VALIDITY OF HIS ELECTION IS SERIOUSLY QUESTIONED.

SOMETHING APPEARS WRONG

WERE THE BALLOTS JUGGLED? AFFIDAVITS OF ALDERMEN

SWEAR AS TO THEIR VOTES

Count Showed Only One Ballot for Hopkins Although Two Councilmen Now Take Oath That They Voted for Him—To Be Investigated

The validity of the election of R J Verner as superintendent of the city water department is seriously questioned according to affidavits sworn to by Aldermen F W Frost, A M Holden and F B Hosman which are now in the hands of Attorney W H Spurgeon. At the election during the city council meeting on April 15 the tellers Aldermen A M Hill and Carl Albin reported five votes for Verner two blank ballots and one vote for R A Hopkins the retiring incumbent of the office. The president of council C A Lentz accordingly declared Mr Verner duly elected.

Since that time however some of the aldermen who had cast votes for Verner have been comparing notes with the result that the three named have made affidavits showing that they voted Aldermen Hosman and Frost that they voted for Hopkins and Alderman Holden swore that he voted a blank ballot. The tellers report two well defined votes Hopkins and two blank ballots.

Something Wrong

The question is what became of one of the ballots cast for Hopkins. If there were two blank ballots as reported it is thought there should have been fifteen votes for election and it would appear that four members of the council did not vote for Verner which would give him only five votes. What strengthens this supposition is a verbal statement by Albin that he voted a blank ballot which with the blank cast by Holden would make two blanks and the five for Hopkins.

Alderman Albin told The Gazette one of the witnesses that he cast a blank ballot. Said Mr Hopkins to a representative of The Gazette last night "The story as affected Mr Albin.

I was one of the tellers of Mr Albin and all I can say is that there were five votes for Verner.

Was there any one vote for Mr Hopkins and two blanks? was asked.

Yes I think that is the way it stood he said.

The vote was announced exactly as it stood five for Verner one for Hopkins and two blank ballots and Mr Hosman A M Hill the other teller has a few witnesses who can tell the same thing. That is all I can say about the matter.

Mayor Heizer Talks

When asked for a statement on the matter Mayor D N Heizer said:

All that I can say is what the official records shown in the books of the council and from these it appears that Mr Verner was duly elected. That is the way I regard it and I am holding him responsible for the office and have no right to do otherwise.

The Gazette reporter who attended the council meeting says that there were eight ballots spread on the table by Tellers Hill and Albin. Two were blank and one for Hopkins was plainly seen. On top of the five other ballots was a separate ballot bore the name of Verner. Both Albin and Hill repeated the name of Verner on reading each of the five ballots placed to his credit and both turned over the two blank ballots which were plainly blank on both sides.

The Telegraph reporter who attended the council meeting says that he is positive that the ballots as spread out from the box in which they were collected show five for Verner one for Hopkins and two blanks.

Hopkins Will Keep Books

In speaking of the matter last night Mr Hopkins said that he did not feel satisfied that Mr Verner had been legally elected and as he (Hopkins) still held the keys of the office he would return to the books of the office until he is assured of the validity of the election. He still before intends to continue in office until the matter is settled and he has been legally relieved from duty or legally established in office. In view of the affidavits obtained by the tellers Hill and Hosman and the official statement of Albin there appears to be some doubt as to the election and he will remain in charge of the books until convinced that Verner was legally elected.

GENERAL KUROKI IS WARMLY WELCOMED AT SEATTLE.

Great Japanese General Is En Route to Jamestown—Reception Given in His Honor

SEATTLE May 2—General Kuroki and staff representatives of Japan to the Jamestown exposition arrived in this city from the orient at half past three o'clock this afternoon and were hurried aboard a Puget Sound winnebago fog. They received a royal and picturesque welcome from both local Japanese and Americans who crowded every dock on the water front.

Tonight and tomorrow the party is the guest of the city. This afternoon the party was taken for a ride around the city in automobiles visiting various points of interest. In the evening a brilliant reception was given in the Palmer club house which the governor of the city and prominent citizens were present.

Local Japanese are enthusiastic over the coming of their great general. Day light fireworks were set off over the bay and as the party landed the national anthem of Japan almost inaudible amid the cheers of a hundred Japanese girls and the national anthem of the United States generals carriage was almost buried with flowers presented by school children.

The reception of Gen Kuroki at the wharf upon the arrival of the steamer Dirigo was in charge of the chamber of commerce the Asiatic society and the Japanese association of Seattle.

The government was represented by General MacArthur Col John F Chamberlain Col Frank Winn and Major Hoff who will act as the escort of the distinguished party from Seattle to Washington D C.

HOPE TO MAINTAIN PEACE

Conference Being Held to Adjust Differences Between Mexico and Guatemala

WASHINGTON May 2—The strained relations between Mexico and Guatemala resulting from the failure of the latter to surrender under extradition proceedings for trial in Mexico general Barrios charged with complicity in the assassination of President Barillas is a matter of serious concern to the officials here. They hope to maintain peace on the entire American continent calling the conclusion of the peace conference at The Hague.

An instance of the apprehension over the situation was another conference today between Secretary Root and Ambassador Creel of Mexico. It is announced however that Mexico expects it will not be necessary to resort to actual hostilities. If Guatemala as is expected finally refuses to extradite Barrios the Mexican troops on the Guatemalan frontier will be withdrawn and diplomatic relations terminated. Even in the event of a peaceable settlement the difficulty would not be impossible.

The state department announces that it can do nothing at present to cause the two countries to settle their differences. But developments will be watched anxiously.

DUTY MUST NOT BE SHUNNED

President Roosevelt in Address, Says There Is but One Person in This Country Ahead of the Soldier and That Is Really Good Woman

WASHINGTON May 2 President Roosevelt in an address at the unveiling of the statue of General George B McClellan here declared weakness and timidity in peace would be obtained on the right terms. He would say [illegible] if it were [illegible] if in truth for the sake of the country.

The address was delivered for the benefit of the assembled veterans of the war. He said:

Seek the peace that comes to the just man armed with the will and the strength to uphold his rights. If the good build up such a people that will not shrink from work and will not shrink from danger and will not turn back from the path that must be trodden if we are to leave to our children a heritage worth having. Ask peace of God and of your own conscience. Ask peace of your fellow men but be not put off from the path of duty. Peace is a thing to be sought for and striven for but it is a thing to be sought for only by those who are willing to pay the price for it.

Peace is a good thing but it is not the highest good. There are other things which are better than peace. There are other things which are worse than war. There are other things which are as good as peace. Among them are the maintenance of the rights of a free people and the performance of the duties which free citizenship entails. Peace is a good thing if it is the result of the exercise by each man of the virtues which make for the well being of the state. But it is a bad thing if it is sought by the shirking of the duties which must be performed if the life of the state is to be worth living.

Peace is a good thing if it is the result of the exercise by each man of the virtues of self-respect self-control and self-sacrifice which are necessary if he is to be the master of himself and the good citizen

Harry Orchard may live to die on the gallows for his confessed part in the murder of Steunenberg, but such is not the belief of all the men in this community. This same apprehension offers a difficulty from the standpoint of the prosecution in securing a jury. This has been a man-killing country and under the shadow of a strong suspicion that there may be avenging murders by cranks or others, it may prove a difficult task to secure twelve men willing to run the suspected risk, even in this country of courageous, self-reliant men; assuming that the state establishes its case.

without hindrance from his fellows; and finally and most important it is that equality which we should prize above all else, the equality of self-respect and of mutual respect among each and all of our citizens.

Praised General McClellan.

President Roosevelt began his address by giving generous praise to General George B. McClellan, of whom the heroic equestrian statue was unveiled. McClellan, he said, had commanded in some of the most important engagements of the Civil war, forever linking his name with the mighty memories of the conflict. The president extended the greetings of the nation to Mrs. McClellan, the widow of General George B. McClellan. He praised the statue and thanked the committee for having chosen a noted sculptor to do the work.

Appropriate ceremonies, civic and military, marked the unveiling. Dr. George B. McClellan, the general's nephew, pulled the string, releasing the flags enveloping the statue. As the statue came into view the soldiers fired a salute and the bands played "The Star Spangled Banner." After President's Roosevelt's address, General O. O. Howard spoke.

President Roosevelt, General Frederick Grant, Mrs. McClellan, Mayor McClellan of New York, the general's son, the diplomatic corps and the army and navy officers participated in imposing military parade, which followed the unveiling. Major J. Franklin Bell was in command of the military parade, which consisted of three divisions made up of infantry, artillery and cavalry of the regular army, the National guard of the District of Columbia and the Third regiment of infantry of the New Jersey National guard, battery A of the field artillery and two troops of cavalry from that state.

Imposing Statue.

The statue, which is by Frederick MacMonnies, the American sculptor of Paris, commands an imposing position at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and Columbia road, in the northwestern section of the city. The equestrian group is of bronze and is 14 feet high. The rider is in field costume in repose. The horse is slightly in action. In and around the spot where the monument stands was encamped, in 1861, a large part of the army which McClellan commanded.

Both sides of the pedestal are decorated with bronze trophies in relief, representing cannon, flags, arms, etc.

At each of the four corners of the base of the pedestal there is a bronze eagle. These eagles bear in their beaks heavy garlands of oak and laurel in bronze, which extend around the four sides of the pedestal.

Vidler Here Making Arrangements for Big Celebration at Cripple Creek, May 11.

Every mining man in the Cripple Creek district is boosting for the big excursion from Colorado Springs Denver and Pueblo on May 11 to celebrate the starting of the drainage tunnel said S W Vidler of Cripple Creek who was in the city yesterday as a representative of the Cripple Creek chamber of Commerce the Mine Owners Association and the citizens of Cripple Creek Mr Vidler spent the day conferring with local mining men and a great deal was done towards formulating the plans for the big excursion

Mr Vidler talked with the railroad men and Traffic Manager W A Matlock of the Short Line announced that the rate for the round trip will be only $1 50 The tickets will be ready by the first of the week and each will be countersigned by W P Kinney secretary of the local mining exchange The train will likely go up over the Short Line but back over the Midland Fernando Allen I Purdy who has charge of the Colorado Springs end of the arrangements has received letters from the secretaries of the Denver Mining Exchange the Colorado State Commercial Association and the committee of 100 promising all the assistance in their power to forward the plan and make the excursion a thrilling success

CHEAP WAY TO TRAVEL

You Don't Have to Go Abroad to Be a Globe Trotter.

It isn't at all necessary for a person to go to Europe nowadays to get the name of being a globe trotter An enterprising New Yorker will for $ plaster your baggage with red white and yellow labels of European hotels steamship lines and railroads each label bearing a date stamped on it that will fly detection from the genuine These labels are sold in sets of 40 and include different itineraries Each set is sold at the same price and the order at whose little store in Nassau street New York can be purchased I hope in novelty is enjoying a large and increasing patronage

I ran across this new industry on a recent visit to New York said a prominent Shriner from St Paul who is stopping at the Alamo hotel a representative of The Gazette last night The head porter at the hotel where I stayed put me onto it Out of curiosity I visited the label manufacturer shop and found him doing a very flourishing business even at this season of the year when European travel is supposed to be much in vogue He showed me 20 or 30 different sets and a person would have to be mighty shaky if he could not find some thing among that would please

In addition to the labels he has all the novelties souvenirs and sightseeing guides of the cities in each itinerary and for $10 a person can bring home with him a trunk full of evidence that he has been to Europe There are blackthorns from Ireland Dresden ware from Germany and all coins of all different countries in fact souvenirs of all descriptions to suit any pocketbook In addition he has a postal card which he sells for 25 cents each You write a message on the cards and sign your name These evidences that you are abroad are sent to his agents in the different European cities and are mailed back to America There is absolutely no way of discovering the deception unless the supposed tourist is accidentally met by an acquaintance in New York or wherever he is keeping under cover

The label manufacturing business is quietly advertised by the hotel employes cigar stand clerks barbers and restaurant waiters He gives a commission of 25 per cent and some of his solicitors earn a nice little sum out of it All you need do to make the folks at Colorado Springs believe that you have gone on a trip abroad is to visit the label man and he'll make a globe trotter out of you

AID FOR NEGRO EDUCATION.

MISS ANNA T. JEANES, a Philadelphia woman, has made an educational gift which ought to be productive of valuable results. She has donated $1,000,000 to be used for elementary education of negro children in the rural communities of the South.

The question of proper training for these children was considered recently at an education conference, and the prevailing opinion was that the task is too great for the proper authorities to handle, though they are probably doing as much to advance the cause as could be expected of them. Most of the negro schools are without proper facilities, insufficiently financed and presided over by underpaid teachers. With more money for the work it was felt that much better results could be accomplished.

It is certain that if the race problem in the South is ever to be solved it will be by educating the negroes to a proper realization of the meaning of honesty, industry and thrift. When the negro learns that it is a better and finer thing for him to make some honest calling and work at it steadily than to have no fixed occupation or to be a small-bore politician, he has made a long stride toward the higher usefulness. This condition can only be brought about by allowing the policy advocated by Booker T. Washington and other real leaders of the race, namely to educate the negro to use both hand and brain, and the splendid gift made by Miss Jeanes will aid greatly in attaining this object.

STILL MORE IMMIGRATION.

IT IS reported from Europe that emigration to the United States this year will probably be greater than ever before. Three hundred thousand are expected to leave Russia for American shores, and if there is the same increase in the number leaving Austria-Hungary and Italy as the three nations along will contribute nearly 1,000,000 immigrants instead of about 700,000 as in each of the last two years.

In 1905 and 1906 (or directly more than 1,000,000 foreigners came to this country, but still the demand for labor is unsupplied. It is one of the most marvelous facts in recent economic history that this influx of aliens can continue year after year and so far from glutting the labor market, seems to have little effect on it. The prosperity of the country is so great that men are wanted in every field of industry, and even the immigration of a million a year and the natural increase of the eighty-five million of our population is insufficient to supply the demand.

Recently a number of the southern and western states have organized bureaus of immigration to secure the laborers needed in their industries and on their farms, and it is probable that this will result in diverting a larger proportion of the new arrivals from New York and other Eastern cities, which already have a greater population of the kind than is desirable. One of the chief objections to the present wholesale method of admitting immigrants is that they congregate in the large Eastern cities where they are not wanted, instead of going to the rural districts of the South and West, where there is an urgent demand for their labor. If they could be induced to scatter around the country it would be better both for them and for the country. By beside supplying the labor demand they would have better opportunities of becoming good Americans through contact with people in their own line.

There is just one thing to be said in the side of those who favor unlimited immigration—it supplies the labor market. Viewing the matter in any other aspect the arguments are all against it. We are now importing each year a number of aliens amounting to 1 per cent of the population of the country, and practically all of them are ignorant and degraded specimens of humanity. The question is, how long can this continue? Sooner or later the assimilating capacity of our population will be overtaxed, and the result may be disastrous. In the meantime, of course, the unfortunate immigrants are the victims of the greed of the manufacturers, who are glad to get cheap labor, and of the transportation companies, which have found it a profitable business to import the foreigners. The great Southern immigration agents are also good at work, and American citizens have little or no protection against them. Further, on the other hand, they are not helping, only the demand for labor is so great that the demand cannot be met by the domestic supply.

John Temple Graves thinks Mr. Bryan could make Mr. Roosevelt President or Mr. Roosevelt could make Mr. Bryan President merely by a word. Mr. Graves has a firm belief in the magic of words, even for a Southern spellbinder.

We don't know whether the following incident told by the Chicago Tribune happened in Colorado Springs or not. At any rate it is interesting, especially to the people who were left in darkness for a minute last night by the sudden extinguishment of the electric lights.

The Rev. Dr. [illegible] was in the evening [illegible] when the lights went out. [illegible] had to put aut- [illegible] the [illegible] of the incident that [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] Prohibition, said Dr. Fourthly, without a moment's pause. In view of the sudden and startling fulfillment of this prophecy, we will spend a few minutes in silent prayer for the electric lighting company.

Today's weather prediction: Clear, with rain or snow. May be fair and warmer, but can't tell definitely before night. Dust storms hardly to be expected. (Subject to change without notice.)

Mabel Gilman's announcement that she is to marry William L. Corey on May 13 is refreshing. It means that there is soon to be an end to another of the long list of Pittsburgh scandals.

If it is true, as scientists say, that earthquakes are caused by the shrinkage of the earth's crust, the Equator must be considerably hotter now than it was a year ago.

A late spring saves wear and tear on the lawn mower, remarks the Toledo Blade. It also saves the money that would otherwise go for summer clothes.

About the maddest man in the country just now is Mr. Wadsworth of New York, who couldn't get a rise out of the President even by calling him a fakir and a humbug.

A New York man has been sent to Sing Sing for three years for carrying brass knuckles. The mailed fist is out of date nowadays.

Show us in their place where an inch of snow can fall and entirely disappear in an hour.

Don't kick about the weather. It's fine for the crops.

THE SPECKING SPOILS

From the Springfield Republican.

There are spots upon the sun, and it will have to be admitted that the all-popular president used up a little too much like a master spoilsman of the old fashioned sort.

I AM SKILL.

From the Washington Post.

The person of marvelous prosperity so long enjoyed by the United States seems to be as far from its close as it was last spring. The little cloud conjured up by the railroad manager was no bigger than a man's hand and even that seem to have evaporated.

AN AID TO ELOQUENCE

From the New York Times.

A man who can make dead ashes burn as well as fresh coals may learn something to his advantage by communicating with those enterprising spirits who are talking about reorganizing the Democratic party.

THE IDEAL ROOSEVELT

From the New York Evening Post.

When in honest indignation, President Roosevelt holds up to public scorn those wicked chiefs of labor organizations whose policy is violence, incitement to crime and bloodshed, he puts the whole country in his debt. Such a frank and timely deliverance will help to keep alive that ideal of Roosevelt which we all like to cherish.

MUST OWN EVERYTHING.

From the New York World.

Mr. Bryan is in unconscious parallel. If political corruption by railroad money is necessitates government ownership of railroads, then such corruption by other industrial magnates necessitates government ownership of their property as well. The Steel trust, the Tobacco trust, the Oil trust, the Paper trust, the Coal trust, the Ice trust and scores of other trusts have incentive to befoul the political system just as the railroads have.

THE NEGRO SOUTH

From the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

If the negroes did not like the south they would move away. But they do like it. They know that there is no danger of lynching so long as they do not commit brutal crimes, and as for the Jim Crow laws, if the color line is to be drawn at all the negro wants it to be well marked. In the south his exact status is fixed and he knows where he stands. In the north his position is doubtful and equivocal. Naturally he prefers the frankness and sincerity of the southern whites.

A TRULY GLOOMY VIEW.

From the New York Tribune.

Each party appears to have a prospective candidate. It can hardly be doubted that if the president should get another term the talk of Roosevelt would rise about as high four years hence as it has risen now. The minds of the people appear to be shut up to their views and tastes. They are thinking about no body but Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Bryan. They will listen to the mention of no other names they see no other possible candidates. A man from Mars would think there are but two great living Americans.

HIGH-PRICED LEGISLATORS

From the Philadelphia Press.

If Pennsylvania makes the legislative salary $1000 per term of two years and one regular session, it will be an upward movement in the legislative rate that can not fail to have its influence on their fees. Fifteen hundred dollars a month is not a great income for persons of the legislatures we have had. Harrisburg does not need much better legislators whose ability and integrity match its responsible and important duties. The people do not begrudge the increased compensation if it is spending the average character and capacity to the legislature.

HUGHES A REPUBLICAN TIDEDN

From the New York World.

Mr. Hughes's nomination for governor. He has stood on party principles. He has stood on party principles. He has made no personal pledges nor participated in the quadrennial contest for unauthorized boons he has exhibited good government under the constitution. The legislature may fail to do its duty, but nobody can say that Mr. Hughes has failed to do his. If this is what constitutes a Republican Tidedn the definition applies to Mr. Hughes.

THE CONSULAR EXAMINATIONS

From the New York Globe.

The examinations recently held at Washington for the consular service are significant as marking the beginning of a new era in our foreign intercourse. So much have our consuls been improved in this quality of a service that they have adopted the examination, the first ever given to test the fitness of applicants. This is not exactly a novelty. Both examinations of this character in Mr. Kinley's administration were held, though it is [illegible] that the [illegible] of the [illegible] made [illegible] the present examination possible.

From the Kansas City Journal.

The United States has been very fortunate during the past few years in having three secretaries of state who have raised its prestige to a high degree among the nations of the earth. The fact that this country is generally regarded as the leading nation of the world is not due so much to its overflowing material wealth or to its immense strides in industrial development as to the political genius of three men—Richard Olney, John Hay and Elihu Root. Each in his capacity as secretary of state has conducted the foreign affairs of the nation with consummate vigor and skill and each has succeeded in pushing a great policy which stamped him as the most prominent figure of his day in the world of international politics.

Secretary Olney sprang into world-wide fame at a bound by revitalizing the Monroe doctrine at a time in the world's history when the great powers of Europe were preparing—in fact had already prepared—to ignore or repudiate it. Germany, Austria and Italy, the continental dreibund, had virtually decided to brush aside the Monroe doctrine and accomplish the long cherished purpose of the German Kaiser to get a foothold for colonies on the soil of South America. Even France and England had given tacit consent to the scheme of intercontinental spoliation which they had successfully employed on their own account in China, doubtless hoping to placate Germany's jealousy and envy of their land grabbing operations in the far east by allowing it a free hand in South America. The vastness of the scheme with its boundless possibilities had dazzled the eyes of the English ministry already committed to a policy of world conquest which involved a division among the great powers. The haughty English nobles who composed the English cabinet had allowed themselves to forget the lessons of 1776 and 1812 and had evidently accepted the German idea that the Yankees would not fight or at any rate would not fight for the domineering usurper of Venezuela who was defying the United States as well as all the powers of Europe.

All the preparations of the international conspirators were completed, and their war vessels were in Venezuelan waters ready to strike when Olney's ultimatum came like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. It was a most daring and masterly stroke; for if he had held his hand for a few days or had shown the least sign of weakness in his attitude, because of America for Americans would have been lost or preserved only at the cost of a long and bloody struggle involving such a vast expenditure of treasure and lives as the world had never known. The United States was unprepared and weak in her naval resources so weak that the English statesmen as well as those of the continent could not believe their ears at first when the American premier announced that his country was determined to fight all Europe if necessary to protect the Venezuelan republic. But the ringing tone of his ultimatum declared his sincerity of purpose in terms too plain to be misunderstood and evinced a courage too high and resolute to be disregarded. England was brought to her senses within twenty-four hours, and with her hasty about-face the scheme of the allied conspirators fell to the ground like a house of cards. At that time all America could not have hoped to cope with Europe but one brave American, by calling the English bluff, withstood all Europe and it will be recorded in history. It is true that Olney's paper was such a sound and unanswerable plea for justice and right that his position was impregnable as a matter of argument, but after all it was his boldness and promptness of action that won the day, coupled with a rare diplomatic skill in allowing his antagonist to abandon their position without too great a loss of dignity. Olney was the hand of steel in a glove of silk, the highest form of diplomatic statesmanship.

Secretary Root's admirable tact and skill a few years later in opposing the land grabbing plans of the European nations in the orient was a fitting complement to Olney's work for it saved the integrity of China as Olney had saved that of South America and it precisely drew a field for American trade and commerce by establishing the policy of the open door and raising it to the dignity and force of a principle. Has accomplished his great task with wonderful ease, but his quiet methods could not have been successful except for the lesson of American valor and righteousness which Olney had taught the imperial land robbers a few years before.

Secretary Root's task is not yet accomplished. But the worst obstacles were overcome and its ultimate triumph insured last year when he welded the South and Central American republics into a solid support of the Drago doctrine. With the backing of the united America he will undoubtedly drive the spike that Olney drove and compel the European nations to recognize the binding force of the doctrine of the inviolability of American soil throughout this hemisphere. In uniting the jealous hot headed peoples of the Latin republics and winning their friendship for the United States Mr. Root has in that one fact alone performed a work of consummate statesmanship which will bear a rich harvest in the ripeness of time.

No European statesman since Bismarck in this generation can lay claim to such useful and admirable accomplishments as have marked the careers of these three American premiers whose constructive genius has raised America to the highest pinnacle of power and influence among the nations.

He Steered With His Nose

From the New York Press.

THE crowd around the sail loft stove down on the East river front had been discussing the efficiency of the officers of the United States navy when called upon to extricate their vessels from tight places. Some of the ancient mariners were disposed to scoff at the pretensions of the men who wear the navy uniform of Uncle Sam but Capn Zekiel came gladly to the defence of the navy and its officers.

Education is a great thing, he declared, and the officers of the navy has it. Where education plays will do a thing and do it right, you can count on em every time. Education is great when you get to attack the fleet of the enemy or run agin a fort on shore. That war we had with Spain showed that the officers of the navy was all right when it came to handling a fighting ship. It gave em a chance to show what eddication will do and when on heat of an officer gettin into trouble the chances are that it ain't because he isn't smart. He's all right and says the eddication he's got. When things go wrong with him it's generally because he ain't got sea hoss sense. What I call sea hoss sense is that fee that comes to a man who has been a-follerin the sea since he was a boy.

One of Meanest Fogs

How is it that the pilots on these steamships tells where they be in some of them fogs we have? Ain't eddication this just that sort o sea hoss sense that they have got by spending all their lives floatin around on the water? If the men that runs the warships would jest own up sometimes that the hoss sense of some of us old fellers is better in all the eddication they give 'em down to Annapolis they would git into trouble seldomer than they do now. I fell in with one of em once and he was a man that recognized a man of hoss sense when he see one, an that is how I come to help him out of a scrape.

I don't know as you folks remember, but it used to be the rule that a merchant vessel couldn't have no pilot in makin in American port an sometimes the officers found their job a hard one when twas thick an there didn't happen to be no one among em that was special familiar with the harbor they were bound into.

You remember, sol that fog we had in August 1896 or was it '97? However it don't matter which year it was I was in the Polly Ann them days an on this day in particular I was off Old Orchard. That was probably one of the meanest fogs that we ever had. A whistle that blew due east would sound as if twas west to the northwest. I've been along the coast, mostly on box for about fifty years an I never see the like of that fog.

Warned Warship Captain

Of course I knew pretty well where I was, to, of course. The most of us skippers could sense it, but when I got off old Orchard I was bothered some by a whistle a-fectin my head. It sounded as if it was plumb up in the beach. It sounded like I had to be a-sidecated an have had the sense of where we be that's of follerin the coast in weather of weather. I guess that I should have steered for where that white sound fell, twas in from and on the Little Ann for the breakers. Anyhow sea hoss sense told me that I was a-sold. Old Orchard an sea says to myself that I would let the whistle blow in jest sail the Polly Ann regardless.

Well, I jest come to that conclusion when there loomed up almost onto us an jest two points off in the port bow one of them old wooden frigates an she was bound for that spot on Old Orchard beach where the iron pier is today. When I see that I hailed em an asked if they knew where they was goin. The man war was running and blow as my prudent skipper would run his vessel in that kind of weather. Well we held quite a talk there about it an I told em about that sixth sounding an all fired quick. Netterdly the captain of that ship wut a-to know. Thus he was goin to get into port if he could it to Falcon the whil Gos was. He said he warnt allowed by the regulations to take a pilot. I said that he could foller me an I'd see that he got there all right but he said that he was afraid that that would be takin a pilot within the meaning of the rule.

Officer Followed His Nose

Then I sung out to him that in the case I should advise that he jest follow his nose. The officer that was a-lum the talkin's end nod at me but I holded a sign an said that I was a-nowise joke. I said folks follow your nose. I says you light into Portland all right. I'm not the man I says to play no cheap jokes.

The officer says somet [illegible] was a man of sense and well of eddication asks if I was an arrest an I says I he didn't want to foller a sight of me. All he'd got to do was to take me out of sight of the ship would be made plain to him. The best lane course that would take him to port I'd see. Then I sung out to him that I would be right in the wake of the ship. I'd see that he got there safe. He said he would follow me. I said that he could follow me. I'd see that he got there all right but he said that he was afraid that that would be takin a pilot within the meaning of the rule.

Led Him Safely to Port

Thank ye kindly sir, I says. I'm glad that you got in without takin a pilot. Permit me to say, I says, that yer is polite in gettin to the port himself that you are a fine sailor sir, because why. Because you know how to take advantage of the aids which is provided for the mariner, I says.

With that he says it would give him pleasure to send on board the Polly Ann a slight recognition of his sense of obligation. Them was his words, a slight recognition of his sense of obligation, an I says that if it took the form of that he was then enjoyin I should feel that I was well paid. He says that he thought he would be at least pleasanter to a man who followed his nose than my own guide to the sailor. In then we exchanged the compliments of the day, sigh up I took up my leave. Well I guess there was about all there was to it.

But how could he get into port if he didn't see it, someone asked.

Humph. He could hear, said Capn Zekie.

You'll have to go sight, Sol, said Capn Zekie. Didn't I tell you that sound warnt to guide in that fog because it seemed to come in every direction but the right one.

Well what in thunder did it then, asked the invariable Captain Sol.

Trailed Smell of Phosphate

Phosphate, said Zekiel with a chuckle. She was loaded with some of that patent fertilizer an I jest smashed in a barrel of the stuff and set it on deck. In that damp it did smell powerful. The course of the old Polly Ann was marked as plain as if there had been a row of lighthouses an fog signals there. That smell was so powerful that there was a line of it from off Old Orchard to the point where I turned off in the harbor. The captain told me that when he found that his ship was gettin off the course he put her round an come back till he found that smell again an followed it right into the harbor. He said the trail part was as plain as a street orice with a lamp post onto it. You see, the fog was so thick that the smell of that phosphate just hung where twas left by the old Polly Ann.

You ought to take out a patent on that scheme, said Capn Sol.

Well, I have thought some of it, replied Capn Zekiel, but haint got to it yet. I'll get through my oysters an I'll make the eddication I want to sell in phosphate. If those that in their wisdom decided went into the scheme there would be so many smells that skippers might be mighty liable to git mixed up in them. Now but if a man was a man of eddication. He didn't have sea hoss sense but his eddication didn't prevent his natural faculties from that old.

Well-Known Newspaper Man to Tell About Panama Canal

The natives of Panama are a mixture of Spanish descendants but American example is working them up, though slowly, remarked Frank Fundy Webster, a Denver newspaper man who came in from Cripple Creek last night. He and Alfred Patek for many years managing editor of the Denver Times and Post, recently visited the isthmus for newspaper material which they gathered in big quantities and are just back from the tropics.

EXPENSIVE ELECTION

TWENTY-THREE CANDIDATES FILE STATEMENTS.

Fifteen Fail to Comply With the Law—Holden Spent $282.85 and MacMillan $60

Sworn statements of the amount spent by candidates in the recent city election have been filed with City Clerk F. C. Whittaker by 23 out of the 8 candidates. The law provides that the statements must be filed within 30 days after election which would mean yesterday the last day for filing. All candidates are expected to be heard from. A penalty is provided in case of default but the clerk is not empowered to go beyond notifying the delinquents.

From the statements filed it is seen that the candidates on the Republican ticket were assessed certain amounts by the Republican central committee to help defray expenses. Each alderman was assessed $40 and each city candidate from $100 to $150 according to the importance of the office for which he ran. This brings the total expenses of the Republican candidates considerably higher than those of the other parties. K. M. MacMillan spent $60 in his campaign which places him among the very lowest on the list. The other two municipal candidates have not yet filed statement. The largest amount spent among those already filed was $282.85 by A. M. Holden the successful candidate for alderman in the seventh ward.

The list up to date follows: Thomas McCaffery $55; J. P. Hogan $8; Carl Vahn $10; M. W. Purcell $1; C. P. Bennett $10; K. M. MacMillan $60; G. M. Perry $1; A. M. Holden $282.85; W. F. Kissam $65; E. ACID IN THE BLOOD

A well known authority on Rheumatism gives the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription which any one can easily prepare at home:

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost.

This mixture is said to relieve almost any case of Rheumatism which is nothing more or less than sour blood—too much acid in the system which in damp cool weather forms into minute crystals about the joints and muscles causing the awful pain and misery of Rheumatism.

The above mixture is said to force the Kidneys to purify and sweeten the blood causing the Rheumatic pain and swelling to diminish with each dose until permanent results are obtained and without injuring the stomach.

BEACON IS IMPROVING

VAN TILBORG IS SECURING SOME $50 ORE.

Two-Foot Vein Encountered on Southeast Slope by Tom Head. Results Are Satisfactory.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, May 2.—Tom Head, who is leasing on a block of the Beacon claim of the Prince Albert company, on the southeast slope of Beacon hill, has opened up a two-foot vein at a depth of 160 feet, from which shipments are being made that give returns in car lots of two ounces. The ore is getting gradually better as development work progresses.

L. A. Van Tilborg and associates, who are also working on this claim through the main working shaft, at an approximate depth of 300 and 350 feet, are breaking ore about three feet wide which gives returns of from $40 to $50 in gold to the ton. Stoping is now in progress on both levels. It was only a short time ago that a crosscut was extended on the 350-foot level to get under the ore opened 50 feet above. The Prince Albert, during the early days of the camp, produced some exceptionally fine ore, but it has only been in the last few months that any good results have been made from this property.

APRIL TONNAGE LARGE

INDEPENDENCE SHIPS OVER 2,000 TONS OF ORE.

"Jewel Casket" Producing Richest Rock Sent Out by the Stratton Company.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, May 2.—The Stratton Independence, Ltd., on Battle mountain, has a force of some 20 sets of lessees working through the big property, and during the month just ended these lessees consigned approximately 2,000 tons to the U. S. R. & R. at Colorado City. Wilson and associates, leasing on the fourth level, better known as the "Jewel Casket," are producing the richest ore being sent out. Five or six months ago these lessees caught up a big stringer and, passing through, encountered a big flat vein, from which fabulous assays were obtained. The ore now being sent out from this lease is reputed to give returns from $80 to $150 in gold to the ton.

It is expected most any time that the directors in London will take some action toward the building of an immense cyanide mill to treat the tremendous quantity of dump rock as well as the low-grade ore in practically endless quantities, which is to be found in the mine. Experiments are being made constantly, plans submitted and other data secured, and when the plans are finally decided upon it will mean that the company will erect one of the most up-to-date cyanide mills in the world, with a capacity ranging from 500 to 750 tons daily, with spare room left in the buildings to increase the capacity if desired.

NEW SHOOT PROMISES WELL

Six-Foot Vein Encountered in the Oro Claim by the Pay Rock Company.

CRIPPLE CREEK, May 2.—The Pay Rock Mining and Leasing company, composed of Colorado Springs and Denver capitalists, operating on the Oro claim of the Oro company, on Battle hill, has, within the last few days, encountered a vein which is [illegible] wide at a depth of 20 feet, in the south shaft. The footwall has been encountered, but so far the hanging wall has not been exposed. Assays taken clear across the entire shoot give returns of $5.60 in gold to the ton. The company in other parts of the property have encountered some nice looking veins, but they have been of a low grade. The new shoot just out, however, promises well.

VALUABLE FIND MADE

RICH ORE ENCOUNTERED BY UNION COMPANY.

Coarse Rock Found in Proper-Monitor Claims Assays as High as $920 to the Ton.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, May 2.—The Union Leasing company, subleasing on the Proper-Monitor claims, on the northeast slope of Gold hill from the Keystone company, has encountered one of the best strikes that has ever been made in this vicinity. In an upraise driven from the 192-foot level a vein four to six feet wide has been exposed.

Tuesday, assays taken gave returns on the coarse rock of $[illegible]. Later the coarse rock assayed $920, and the screenings went $8.60. There is a brown streak in the vein which was assayed separately, and the assays Tuesday went $152 by [illegible]. Yesterday, from that same streak, the values obtained were $241.20.

The Keystone company, which is also working in another part of this property, has been shipping regularly, and ore has been running from three to five ounces.

MUCH DEVELOPMENT WORK

W. P. H. Company Extending Laterals in All Directions.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, May 2.—The W. P. H. Mining and Leasing company, leasing on a portion of the W. P. H., Teutonic and Jerry Johnson claims, on Ironclad hill, continues to do a large amount of development work at a depth of 200 feet. Laterals have been extended in several directions, and a half dozen exhaust ore bodies have been encountered. The company is now constructing a new cyanide mill of 150 tons daily capacity, and the management expects that the mill will be ready to treat ore not later than June 1.

ONE-PIECE GOWN REIGNS.

Season's Summer Fabrics to Form Dreams of Beauty.

From the Chicago Chronicle.

The lingerie gown promises to have an unprecedented success this season. It is almost invariably a one-piece frock. It may not be what one would call strictly a princess gown, for often the waist line is definitely marked by rows of insertion, sometimes forming a corselet effect. The one-piece frock is found in all summer fabrics for anything that is intended to be a little dressier than the tailored silk shirtwaist suit. From comparatively plain designs it ranges into marvels of filmy lace and handwork.

Fine batiste is used exclusively for thin frocks and the manner in which it is worked up with hand embroidery, lace or tucks, or sometimes all three together, gives a variety in design worthy of admiration.

A few choice models show the clever treatment followed in making up these most delectable summer gowns. One of these, for instance, is topped with an openwork surrounded by hand-embroidered sprays of flowers. This forms the bib front and runs into long panels in the skirt. The pointed vest and skirt fronts are inset with valenciennes lace, and the entire frock is laid in narrow tucks.

Another gown has insertions of lace and the tucks on the flounce are graduated in width. A row of lace insertion marks the waist line and the bodice and front panel, as well as a broad band above the flounce, are elaborately hand wrought.

These hand embroideries are not always in white, but where color is used it must be handled delicately or avoided. One design not shown here has straps crossed on the bodice and around the skirt worked with rosebuds of the very palest pink and green shades. This gown has a corselet and inset bands on the skirt of palest pink batiste laid in the narrowest pin tucks, and it is also elaborately but judiciously inset with fine lace.

Many of these one-piece robes have the insertions running up and down as will be noticed, but the effect is equally happy when the lace runs around instead of up and down. Such a gown has quite wide strips of princess lace from which tucked flounces of the material sprout, each one flaring more until it reaches the flounce, ending in a number of narrow tucks.

UNION PACIFIC RULES

STOCK MARKET RESPONSIVE TO ITS COURSE.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The stock market today again showed itself responsive to the course of Union Pacific, and not much to any other development. The tone was heavy during the early part of the day in continuation of the depression under which the dealings ended yesterday. Union Pacific shared to some extent in the decline. The better tone, which ensued when the Harriman stocks turned upward, [illegible] spread and was not decided outside of that immediate group.

The strength of Union Pacific was as much without explanation in any special particular as it has been from the first and continued in consequence the subject of a great variety of rumors for which no authoritative confirmation could be had. The spurt in the preferred stock preceded the recovery in the common and served to disprove the rumors of a distribution of shares in a company which would hold Union Pacific stocks in other companies. The preferred stock has not hitherto moved in company with the common, although the report of an intended holding company has been current ever since Union Pacific became active and strong. It was only recently pointed out that preferred stockholders would share with holders of common stock rights to any distribution of Union Pacific treasury assets.

The jump in the preferred stock today might be ascribed either to a belated recognition of the value of expected rights or a perception of market operators of a rise in the combination to be shared in by the preferred. The lack of authentic information to account for the Union Pacific movement makes it somewhat unconvincing as a reflection of general market conditions. It is expected that the statement of net earnings of the two Harriman companies, which probably will be published tomorrow, will make a favorable showing. The sympathetic influence of the action of the Harriman stocks was most distinct in other transcontinental stocks and others that have been joined in previous movements of the group.

The copper industrials showed some independent strength of the metal. The unfavorable effect of the proposed issue of $26,000,000 of Anaconda convertible bonds bearing 5 per cent interest seemed to be modified to some extent today. The old convertible issues of the company recovered a part of yesterday's decline and the general bond market was not affected as much as had been feared by bond dealers as a consequence of the terms offered by the company to secure new capital. Some benefit accrued to the late stock market from the failure of the wheat market to hold its extreme rise. There was an increased disposition also to ascribe a part of the keen decline for wheat to the poor prospects of foreign harvests as well as our own. The money market underwent no marked change in conditions. Union Pacific was pushed to above 150, but the even figure was evidently the objective point of the day's movement and the stock closed there, holding the general market firm. Bonds were irregular.

Total sales, par value, $1,490,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

WHEAT MARKET ACTIVE

TRADING IS ON A VERY BROAD SCALE ALL DAY.

Commission Houses, Shorts and Bull Traders Compete for Grain.—Unfavorable Weather the Cause.

CHICAGO, May 2.—Trading in wheat today was on a very broad scale, commission houses, shorts and bull traders competing fiercely for the grain. The selling was chiefly by holders. The principal cause of the demand was the growing conviction that the wheat crop for 1907 will be greatly lessened because of unfavorable weather conditions. Reports were received today from Nebraska and other sections of the winter wheat belt that indicated that severely damaged the growing crop. The prediction of the weather bureau that similar conditions will prevail tonight intensified the bullish feeling. The sharp advances in prices at the chief grain centers of Europe were additional sources of strength. Late in the day the edge was taken off the market by the weakness of coarse grain, but the sentiment continued bullish until the close, which was strong. July opened ⅝c to ¾c higher at 84¼c to 84½c, sold at 84⅝c, and then advanced to 85⅝c, closing at 84⅝c.

The strength of wheat lent some firmness to corn early in the day, but the market soon weakened on selling by elevator interests and continued rather weak for the remainder of the day. Clear weather in the corn belt, which will facilitate corn planting, helped to create bearish sentiment. The market closed weak. July corn opened ⅛c to ¼c higher at 50⅝c to 50½c, sold at 50⅝c, and then declined to 49⅞c. The close was at 49⅞@50c.

Reports of damage to the oats crop by frost caused a good demand at the opening. The market closed weak. July oats opened ⅛c lower to ½c higher at 43⅝c to 44c, sold off to 42⅞c, and closed at 42⅞@43c.

Provisions were firm on a good demand for lard, local stocks of which were much smaller than estimated. At the close July pork was up 5 cents at $15.95. Lard was up 7½c at $8.82½. Ribs were 2½@5c higher at $8.75@8.77½.

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY

CHARLES HANFORD IN "JULIUS CAESAR"

Mr. Charles B. Hanford, whose appearance as "Marc Antony" in "Julius Caesar" at the Opera house on next Monday evening, will rank as one of the most interesting and important events of the current theatrical season, is by nature as well as by training singularly adapted to the role which he portrays in this great drama of statesmanship. He is an actor, who, despite his many successes in light comedy, is unquestionably one of the foremost interpreters of the declamatory school now before the American public. He is distinctly of the oratorical type. One who professes to read character by outward physical indications will see something more than a mere coincidence in Mr. Hanford's auspicious resemblance to the great modern orator, William Jennings Bryan. This production of "Julius Caesar" will be a revival in the correct sense of the word, for it was as "Marc Antony" that Mr. Hanford years ago stepped from obscurity into stellar prominence, as a supporting actor in the company of Booth and Barrett. Mr. Hanford purchased the scenery and costumes of that production from the estate of Lawrence Barrett, and these form the basis of the elaborate and historically accurate representation now offered.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON PANAMA CANAL

A review of all previous efforts and dreams to construct a canal at some point to join the Atlantic and Pacific; a graphic description of what is now being done and what has been accomplished; a sketch of the tremendous preliminary work of sanitation—the foundation of actual construction work and human interest touches that picture life among the natives and laborers—these will be given by Alfred Patek, the well known Denver newspaper man, in his lecture at the Opera house this evening. Mr. Patek saw life and construction in Panama through a newspaper man's eyes and will tell his impressions in a graphic manner, covering every phase of canal work besides the human interest features. In addition to its educational value the talk and picture will furnish an evening of entertainment that should appeal to both men and women. Mr. Patek is well known as a brilliant writer, and there will be nothing "dry" about his talk. His large newspaper training has taught him the art of dressing mere facts in a most attractive style.

After hearing his talk and seeing the fifteen magnificent moving pictures and 200 lantern slides, the audience tonight will feel that he has visited ancient Panama as modernized by the United States, and has seen the 25,000 men under American direction throwing the dirt in the big canal.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE AT OPERA HOUSE SATURDAY NIGHT

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: A large audience assembled at Kent theater this afternoon to listen to the address of the Hon. Robert M. La Follette, on "The Menace of the Machine." The annual address upon the 22d of February has become one of the features of the Chicago university. The orator of the occasion two years ago was President-elect McKinley, and a year ago Theodore Roosevelt of New York. The audience composed the scholarly element of Chicago, showed itself a critical one by its marked manifestations of approval as Mr. La Follette proceeded. By frequent and prolonged applause it showed how deep was its interest in the subject and how thoroughly it appreciated Mr. La Follette's masterful presentation of it.

SOCIALIST EXAMPLE.

From the London Daily Graphic.

If once the individualists pay as much attention to their organization and discipline as the followers of Messrs. Bebel, Jaures, and Keir Hardie, we shall hear very little of the sinister experiments which are now threatening the traditional economic structure of society.

JOHN B. WOESTMAN DIES

Word has been received here of the death in St. Louis of John B. Woestman, father of Edward F. Woestman of the Keystone Mercantile company of this city. Mr. Woestman was at his father's bedside when death came. The deceased was 75 years of age and a prominent financier and real estate man of St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Woestman will remain in St. Louis until after the funeral.

Harper and Small, real estate agents, report the following transactions from their office in the Colorado building: The purchase by J. F. Manley of the five-room modern residence at 302 North Seventh street. The purchase by Whittlesey brothers of a 482-acre ranch on Turkey Creek from William Worley; also the purchase by B. L. Harper of the five-room modern house at 15 South Fourteenth street. These transactions aggregate $9,400.00 which together with other heavy real deals of a few weeks indicates that this firm of Harper and Small within the past few weeks indicates that this firm of real estate men are wide awake and enjoying their share of the real estate business being transacted in this section. We might add this firm are believers in heavy and judicious advertising and are reaping the benefits certain to result therefrom.
